United States Attorney Deborah R. Gilg announced that Matthew J. Campbell, 37, of Omaha, was sentenced for the receipt and distribution of child pornography. The Honorable Joseph F. Bataillon, United States Chief District Court Judge, sentenced Campbell to five years imprisonment. After his release from prison Campbell will begin a 5 year term of supervised release.

On January 12, 2010, an Investigator with the Nebraska State Patrol was conducting an investigation of individuals sharing child pornography on the internet by using file sharing programs. The investigation revealed an Internet Protocol address assigned to Campbell.

On June 23, 2010, members of the FBI Cyber Crimes Task Force served a search warrant at Campbell's residence. A forensic analysis of Campbell's computer revealed 21 videos and 28 images of child pornography. The videos and images involved were depictions of prepubescent children including depictions of bondage.

This case was brought as part of Project Safe Childhood, a nationwide initiative to combat the growing epidemic of child sexual exploitation and abuse launched in May 2006 by the Department of Justice. Led by United States Attorneys' Offices and the Criminal Division's Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section (CEOS), Project Safe Childhood marshals federal, state and local resources to better locate, apprehend and prosecute individuals who exploit children via the Internet, as well as to identify and rescue victims. The Omaha CCTF is a multi-jurisdictional task force consisting of eleven federal, state and local law enforcement agencies from Nebraska and Iowa.
